Knowing the Worst.

Every morning John, the granger, looked with sadness on his corn, for it was in deadly danger, by the hot winds seared and torn. Through the weary weeks he'd tilled it-only nightfall made him stop-hoping by his toil to build it into something like a crop. It was perishing for water, and the heavens leaked no more; every day was fiercer, hot-ter, than the day that went before. OLD NEWSPAPERS TO BUY ter, than the day that went before. And it seemed to John, the granger, as he watched his corn crop go, that henceforth he'd be a stranger to all things but grief and woe. But when once suspense was ended, and he knew the crop was gone, "Next year's crop may well be splendid, and I'll bank on that," said John. "Two bad years don't come together-that would be too fierce, gadzooks! So next year we'll have such weather as we read ant, hopeful mortal rises when swing? the worst is known to surprise looking for a groan.

U. S. ATTORNEY LASKEY TO WAR ON BAD CHECKS

Gives Assurance to Retail Merchants of Aid to Abate Evil-Authority Given to Credit Bureau.

Assurances that he would do all in his power to break up the 'bad-check evil" were given by District Attorney John E. Laskey, honor guest at a dinner given by the credit men's section of the Retail Merchants' Association last evening at the Commercial Club. He discussed the subject of "Checks, Their Uses and Abuses," in all its legal phases, and pointed out ways in which the bad-check evil may be overcome.

'It should certainly not less than ten members to forward a movement for the establishment of a library in the section. The association urged that Kearney street, from 20th street to Rhode Island avenue, be graded and improved and 20th street, from Jackson to Monroe streets, be graded and improved and sidewalks laid on those streets.

It was unanimously decided to make the credit bureau of the Retail Merchants' Association the medium for the handling of all bad checks, which are to be sent direct to the association on receipt from the bank.

A. V. Hoffman, chairman of the section made a strong plea for co-opera-

Inquiries regarding the Washington plan for the conservation of paper stock and at the same time helping the children with their playgrounds, have been received from a number of quarters now, and it appears that the plan may become nation-wide. This means that enormous quantities of paper material, which might otherwise be burned, destroyed or lost, now will be saved.

Officials of the schools plan to take of the sending the collection of the paper next week. As soon as the collection days for the various schools are announced it will be possible to tell how hard the pupils at each of the schools are working to help their play-grounds.
